Fixing Broken WINDOWS

For A Safer Lancaster

Just as a broken window invites vandalism, a city that ignores small problems invites more serious crime. Lancaster City Police Foundation is working with the police to address both big and small crime problems to help make the City a safer place for residents and visitors.

The Lancaster City Police Foundation is a charitable non-profit organization that:

- promotes a safe community for our residents and visitors,
- enhances the services of the Lancaster Police, &
- works to increase civic support and public safety.

The men and women of the Lancaster Bureau of Police are battling crime and violence spawned by the drug and gun culture that threatens most American cities. Although funding and resources are limited, Lancaster Police are committed to using proven crime-fighting techniques to help stem that tide.

The Bureau of Police's efforts are backed by the Lancaster City Police Foundation, an independent charitable non-profit corporation formed on September 11, 2003. The Foundation's mission is to provide supplemental resources and to fund pilot programs that help our police work better, smarter and more effectively.

The dedicated men and women of the Lancaster Bureau of Police need and deserve our support as they work to protect us and keep Lancaster a safe and vibrant center for the county. As LAPD Chief Bratton said: "There is no police department in the country that has all the funding it could use to effectively fight crime and protect the people."

LANCASTER CITY POLICE FOUNDATION

Community Partners in Public Safety

The Lancaster City Police Foundation is a tax-exempt charitable nonprofit corporation formed on September 11, 2003.

The Foundation promotes a safe environment and neighborhoods for Lancaster residents, workers and visitors.

We enhance the services of our Lancaster Police and work to:

- promote civic spirit in support of public safety & security,
- enhance public awareness of safety issues, such as neighborhood and parent watch, theft prevention, bicycle safety, seat belt use, etc.,
- provide equipment to make police work safer and more effective (shields, computer and radio equipment), and
- educate children and young adults about safety issues in schools and other local settings.

The Police Foundation's accomplishments would not be possible without the steadfast and generous support from our community of donors. Their generosity has a measurable impact on the important resources available to the Lancaster Bureau of Police.

Citizens wishing to become involved in the work of the Foundation are invited to write to the Foundation or contact one of its members.

The Foundation is patterned on foundations in other communities where an active public-police partnership has enhanced public cooperation, education about safety issues, and public safety. By promoting civic interaction with the police, the public better understands police work and becomes "invested" in public safety.

Our officers work diligently to ensure our safety and well-being. Their success, however, goes beyond fighting crime. It is ultimately about the improved quality of life that every Lancaster resident, employee and visitor experiences. We cannot be complacent in the face of devastation caused by drugs and gun violence. It is essential that we continue our partnership with the police to meet the unprecedented challenges of policing today and into the future.
